Having understood that ICC is the organization that represents the presence and identity of clubs at De Anza College, my goal in joining ICC is not only to gain experience or to grow personally, but also to take on greater responsibility, strengthen connections, and support the clubs and students in our school. For me, joining ICC is a learning journey that never truly stops. In that journey, I want to make positive impacts by learning, challenging myself and contributing to the clubs, ICC, and every student at De Anza College as a whole.

I view this position as a responsibility rather than just a title. For me, marketing in ICC is not just about promotion or advertising, it is about delivering the right message that truly reflects the energy and diversity of our campus. Through actively participating in school events, I have developed leadership experience as well as skills such as video editing, poster designing. I am also hard-working and open to feedback. I want to leverage those skills and characteristics to help build a friendly environment where clubs and students get the recognition they deserve, can learn from and inspire one another.

I want to be apart of the ICC because I really enjoy being in campus and socializing with people, while helping people and clubs connecting with each others. I think clubs are one of the most important factor in college/school life, it helps students share and show their interest. Meeting similar people with similar interest will make us feel connected as one. By being a part of ICC it will give me those opportunities to help these clubs grow and get connected together. I think I would be good in the Marketing Position because I'm creative, organized, and pretty good at portraying ideas with images and flyers. I also have some experience in marketing/digital art, since I used to help my mom with her business by managing the social media. I help promote the business by creating flyers, posters, banners, and create unique ways for the posts to be more engaging so more people would notice them. This experience helped me learn the important factors of marketing. I would be very excited to be apart of ICC and use my experience and creativity to help promote the clubs and events. I really want students to get involved on campus activities!!
