

Questions for Wolff, pgs. 24-29 (“The State of Nature”)

- On Rousseau’s view, what important element of human motivation/psychology is missing from the views of Hobbes and Locke?
- Will Rousseau’s “savage man” be inclined to attack others in the state of nature? Why/why not?
- On Rousseau’s view, what gives rise to the need for a state?
- Why doesn’t Rousseau advocate a return to the state of nature?